BEFORE AND AFTER

MDO3D, at the Butts Studios bar.

You asked to see a before and after before the MDO next-level work starts. Each "before" below is the live site as checked today. Each "after" is a static mockup in `~/mdo3d/staged/proposal_2026-10-16/`. Nothing on this page is live.

PART	THE CHANGE	EFFORT	RISK	WHAT WE NEED FROM YOU
(a) Design system	One MDO look: shared header, footer, grid and type rules. Guidance gets the editorial look with real card art; data products share one template.	M–L ~2–3 weeks	Low–Med	OK the look · pick the card-art route
(b) 33 hosts → 3 products	Guidance, Rigor and mdothree each become one address with paths; mdo3d.com becomes a plain index. Old links keep working through 301 redirects.	L ~2–3 weeks	Med	OK the map · GoDaddy login · two GOs
(c) Price ladder	Price follows depth ($3 / $5 / $9), a $20 five-reading pack, every .99 removed, and recurring options where buyers come back.	S–M ~1 week	Low–Med	OK this page; it releases the staged price run
DAT Daily AI Toll	A monthly patron tier plus four organized data packages. Merch comes later.	M ~1–2 weeks	Low	OK the package list

Out of scope: blacklabb.com. Its future is undecided (your note, Oct 15), so nothing here plans around it. Prices are set within doctrine under your Oct 14 delegation: paid-only, no .99 prices, promo codes for early access.

What a visitor finds today

We fetched 40 MDO hostnames this morning. 38 answer with a page. Most of what follows comes from those pages, read the way a first-time buyer reads them.

Working well

Every reading site has a working checkout, and the API checks the payment before it writes the reading.

LayoffLeads and Prompts for Business sell at clean prices: $49 / $490 and $14 / $59.

Daily AI Toll is the closest to the bar: restrained, monospace, one big number (290,574).

The Rigor tools no longer link to a Stripe checkout. Their button reads “Pro: coming soon”.

The BlackLabb footer on numerology is gone.

Costing trust

Dreams shows $4.99 and a “Basic $0” plan. Names shows $2.99.

Tarot charges $10 for three cards and $10 for ten. Runes charges $10 for both three and five.

Feng Shui and Past Life show no price until you submit the form.

None of the reading sites shows a card, rune or hexagram.

`api.rigor.design/api/health` returns 404, so the Rigor tools fail after sign-in.

`leads.mdo3d.com` returns 530 (the tunnel is down).

Spread thin

33 consumer hostnames serve about 3 real products.

We counted 7 visual languages across them.

The hub headline is “One ecosystem. Many dimensions of intelligence.” It says what MDO3D is, not what a visitor can do.

`blacklabb.com` returns a Bubble 404. It is out of scope (your call is pending).

The bar: buttsstudios.com (capture 2026-10-14). One claim, an editorial pair of typefaces, true numbers, one next step.

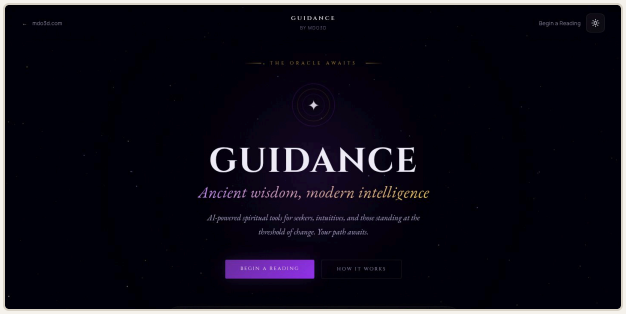

mdo3d.com today (capture 2026-10-16). A purple template, emoji cards and no price anywhere.

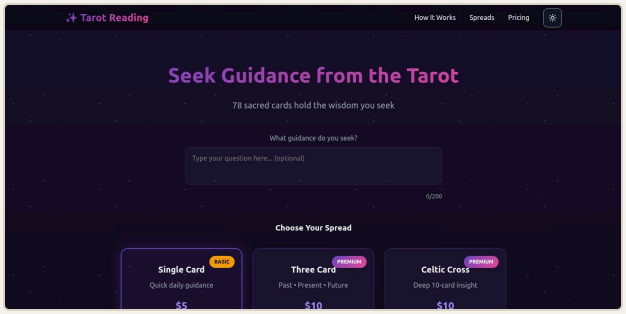

BEFORE

Seven looks, no imagery

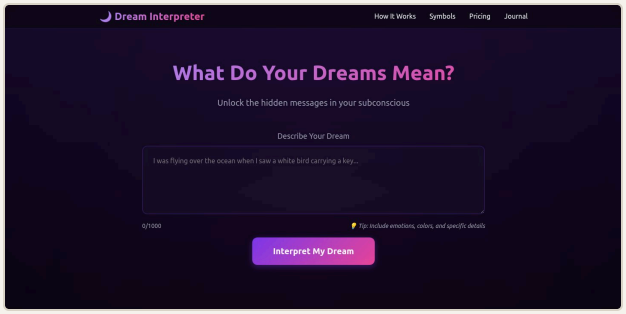

Each MDO site picks its own typeface, palette and buttons. A visitor who clicks from Guidance into Tarot seems to land on another company's site. Every capture below is from 2026-10-16.

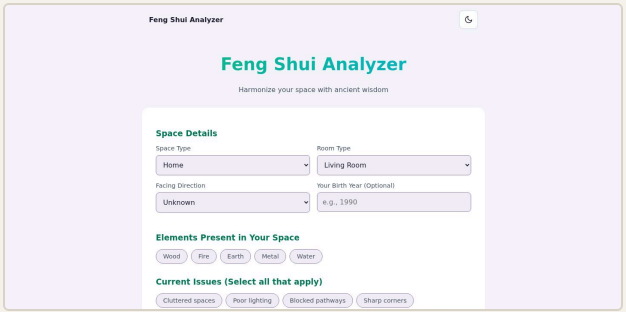

guidance.mdo3d.com: editorial and the closest to the bar, but no price or sample tarot: a purple gradient, $10 for both 3 and 10 cards, no cards on screen dreams: a pink gradient, $4.99, and a “Basic $0” plan fengshui: a long form, no top navigation, no price until you submit names: the best-written offer, on an unstyled default HTML page runes: a grey serif template, $10 for both 3 and 5 runes rigor.design: an emoji grid of 7 cards marked “Beta”, no nav, no footer layoffleads.com: a generic SaaS template, shared with Prompts for Business

mdothree.com: emoji tool cards with a “Live” badge on every card

Captures: staged/proposal_2026-10-16/before/ (xps headless Chrome, 1440×900)

Mockup: guidance.mdo3d.com/tarot. Source: staged/proposal_2026-10-16/mockups/guidance_tarot.html. Card art: Rider–Waite–Smith deck, 1909, public domain. The example reading is placeholder copy.

AFTER

The draw first, the price next to it, the reading shown before you buy

Real card art. You see the three cards you drew. Today no reading site shows a card.

One look for all ten practices: Cormorant and EB Garamond type, ink-violet, gold hairlines. It grows out of today's guidance page.

"What $5 buys" lists the reading's length and parts, with an excerpt, before checkout.

The pack is offered once, on every page.

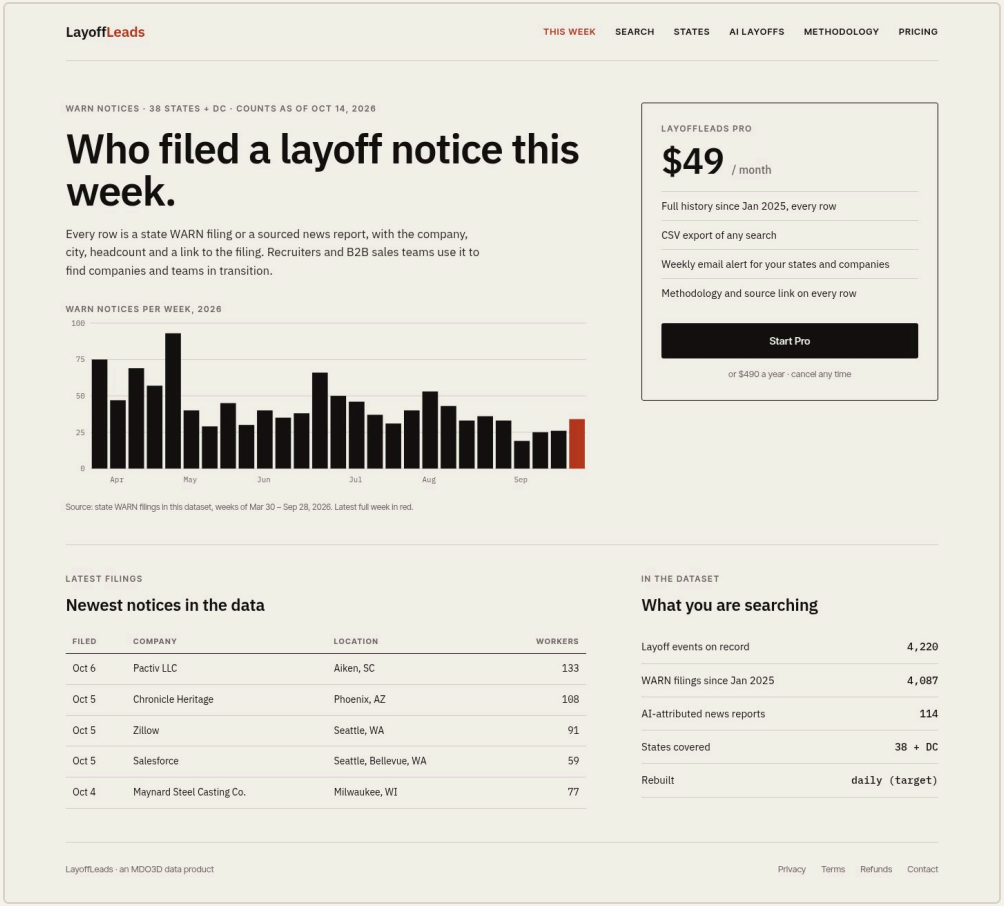

The throughline: the same header, footer, label style, 3 px corners and full hairline borders as every MDO site. There are no pills or emoji.

Card-art routes (your pick)

1. Rider–Waite–Smith, public domain: all 78 cards ready now, at no cost.

2. A commissioned MDO deck: one look across tarot, oracle (44 cards), runes and hexagrams. About 4–8 weeks.

Runes, hexagrams and zodiac glyphs are line art, so we draw those in-house either way.

Mockup: layoffleads.com on the shared template. The chart is real: weekly WARN notices from the LayoffLeads dataset, Mar 30 – Sep 28, 2026. The five rows are the newest filings in the data.

AFTER

Show the data itself, then one offer

A real chart and real rows take the place of five stat boxes.

One offer box gives one price and one button.

The template has a light variant (LayoffLeads, Prompts for Business) and a dark one (Daily AI Toll, page 12). One redesign lifts all three.

FOR A VISITOR

Every MDO site reads as one maker. Prices and samples come before checkout, and reading sites show real cards. Each site is recognizably itself, but they share a throughline.

EFFORT

Tokens, header and footer: 2–3 agent-days. 10 reading apps: 5–7 days (2 are Next.js). Data template ×3: 3–4 days. All agent work; it ships in one batch.

RISK

Low to medium. A restyle could break a buy button, so we test each checkout in Stripe test mode before deploying. The deploy cap is 100 a day, so the work ships in batches.

NEEDS YOU

(1) OK the two looks on pages 4–5. (2) Choose card-art route 1 or 2. Web-copy deploys run under the standing authorization; anything touching checkout or an API waits for your GO.

33 addresses for 3 products

Each hostname has its own header, footer, legal pages, pricing logic and design, so every fix gets repeated about 25 times. All 33 answer with HTTP 200, but some of those 200s are not the right page (marked in red).

What this costs us. Each host is its own Vercel project, with its own cookie banner, legal links, pricing file and deploys. The pricing change alone needs 33 builds against a cap of 100 a day.

What it costs a visitor. Ten addresses to remember for one practice area. A reading credit lives in one subdomain's browser storage, so it is invisible on the others. There is no single “your readings” page.

AFTER

An index of what MDO3D sells, in place of an "ecosystem"

The headline names the three things. Each product row shows the product working: a card draw, a sample resume score, a JSON tool.

Every row gives its price and one next step.

The data and packs sit on their own shelf with one true number each (142 events, 4,220 events, 96 prompts).

The vapor rows, the "Live" and "Beta" badges and the "5 Categories" filler come out.

FOR A VISITOR

One address per product. Old links still land in the right place. One "your readings" page across the practices.

EFFORT

L overall: Guidance rewrites 4–5 days, mdothree 3 days, Rigor 4–5 days, index 2 days.

RISK

A search-ranking dip for 2–6 weeks while the 301s settle. Reading credits stored per subdomain must carry over: old hosts keep their success pages for 90 days.

NEEDS YOU

OK the map · GoDaddy login (jarvisbee) · GO for the Rigor auth-domain change · fate of compare.mdo3d.com · the operating entity named in the footer.

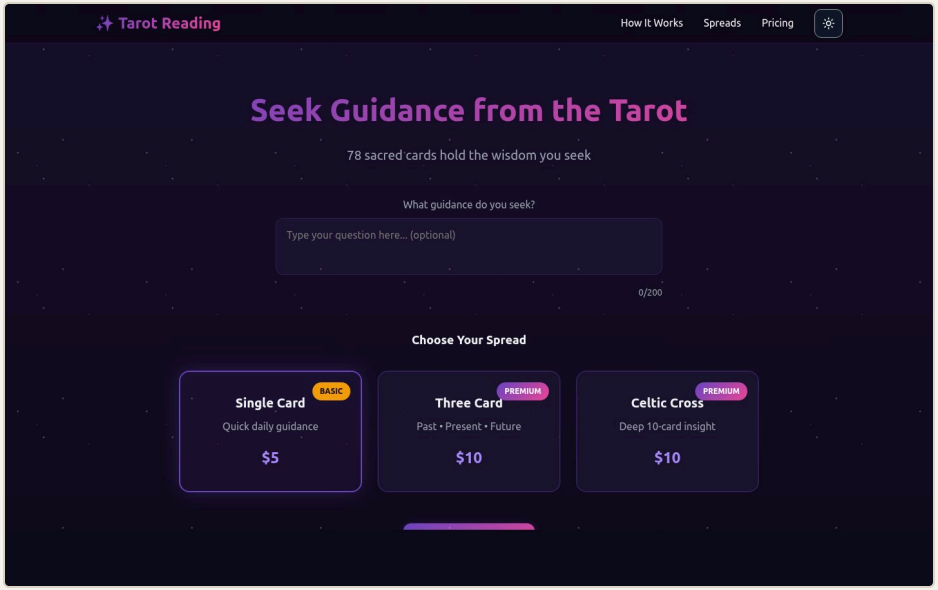

Price follows depth. No .99. Nothing free.

Every "before" price was read off the live page this morning. The after prices for readings, names, Rigor and Ronna are already staged in `staged/pricing/PRICING_GO.sh`. It has not run.

Pricing delegated to the Bridge within doctrine (DECISIONS 2026-10-14 19:40) · old Payment Links stay active; the sites stop linking to them tarot.mdo3d.com today: three tiers, two priced $10, and “Premium” badges on both.

BEFORE

AFTER

The ladder in place: $3 / $5 / $9, sitting under the drawn cards.

FOR A VISITOR

A cheaper first step ($3).

More cards cost more.

One pack covers the whole practice area.

No .99 prices and no $0 plan.

Rigor sells a 30-day pass that fits a job search.

EFFORT

The ladder, names, Rigor and Ronna are already built and staged: about 1 day to run, including 33 builds.

The pack and the Rigor sprint are new: about 3–4 days, since an email-based balance replaces today's per-device credit.

RISK

A $3 single may pull some buyers down from $5. The pack and the depth steps are there to offset that.

Stripe objects are created with idempotency keys and old links stay active.

Tests run first on xps, which needs 25 GB free and has 14 GB today. The run waits on disk space.

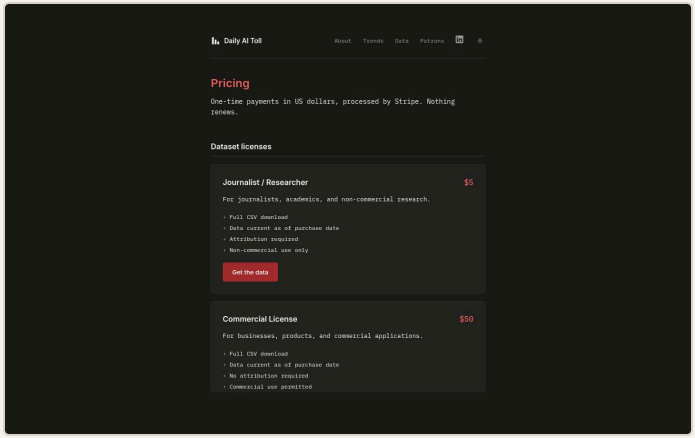

NEEDS YOU

Your OK on pages 9–10 releases the staged price run. The prices themselves are delegated.

Your GO for the pack and Rigor-sprint backend. Both are payment code, so they stay gated.

The mdothree paid model is still your open call.

BEFORE

dailyaitoll.com/pricing today: $5 and $50 one-time CSV licenses. Patrons pay $25, $100 or $500 once. “Nothing renews.” The patrons list is empty.

What's weak today

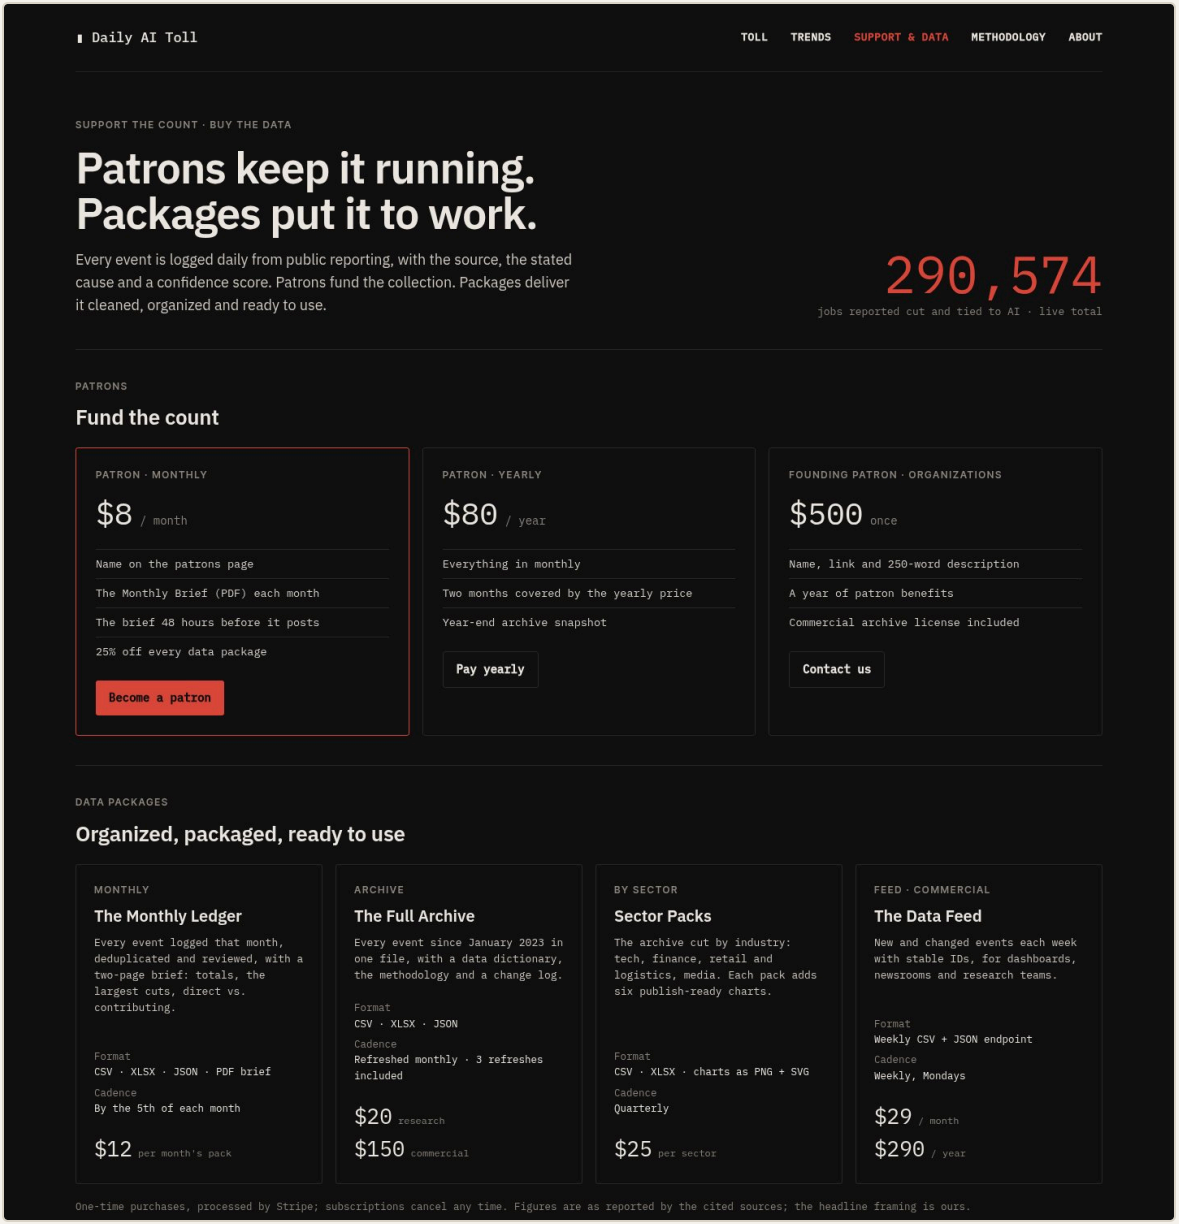

$5 is less than handling a sale costs.

Nothing recurs, so a patron gives once and hears nothing back.

The data comes as one raw CSV, with no package or brief.

The fallback CSV has duplicate rows. The integrity fix (P0) comes first.

Patron tier and four packages

OFFER	WHAT'S IN IT	FORMAT	CADENCE	PRICE
Patron	Name on the patrons page; the Monthly Brief (PDF) 48 h before it posts; 25% off every package via a promo code	PDF brief + email	Monthly	$8/mo · $80/yr
Founding patron	Name, link and a 250-word description (as today) + a year of patron benefits + the commercial archive license	—	Once	$500
The Monthly Ledger	Every event logged that month, deduplicated and reviewed, plus a 2-page brief: totals, the largest cuts, direct vs contributing, sources	CSV · XLSX · JSON · PDF	By the 5th	$12 per month
The Full Archive	Every event since Jan 2023 (event date, company, jobs, cause, confidence, source link), a data dictionary, the methodology and a change log; 3 monthly refreshes included	CSV · XLSX · JSON	Monthly refresh	$20 research · $150 commercial
Sector Packs	The archive cut by industry (tech, finance, retail and logistics, media) + 6 publish-ready charts + a one-page summary	CSV · XLSX · PNG + SVG	Quarterly	$25 per sector
The Data Feed	New and changed events each week with stable IDs, for newsrooms, dashboards and research teams; commercial use	Weekly CSV + JSON endpoint	Weekly, Mondays	$29/mo · $290/yr
Merch	Later, as you said. It gets no page and no "coming soon" until it exists. The obvious first piece is a dated "toll" print from the live number, through the apparel print-on-demand path.	—	Phase 3	—

FOR A VISITOR

Two clear ways in: support the count monthly, or buy the data packaged for a use. Each package says its format and cadence.

EFFORT

Patron subscription + the 4 packages: 5–7 agent-days. The checkout and verified download already exist. Sector packs need a sector tag added to every event (2 days).

RISK

Low, once the data is clean. Before anything sells: the integrity fix (no "undisclosed" = 5,000, no double-counted rounds, no 12-month totals counted as one event) and a rebuilt paid file.

NEEDS YOU

OK this list. Deploying the new checkout and webhook is a payments surface, so it waits for your GO. Today's $5 / $50 links stay active; the page stops featuring them.

What we need from you, and what runs without you

Your calls (taste and strategy)

(a) OK the Guidance look and the data template (pages 4–5).

(a) Card art: 1 public-domain Rider–Waite–Smith now, or 2 a commissioned MDO deck.

(b) OK the three-address map (page 7). Keep or retire compare.mdo3d.com.

(b) Which legal entity appears in the MDO footers.

(c) OK pages 9–10. That releases the staged price run.

DAT OK the patron tier and the four packages (page 12).

Still open from before: the mdothree paid model, and blacklabb.com (out of scope here).

Tokens and GOs (doctrine-gated)

GoDaddy login, to point jarvisbee.com at Guidance (goes to SETUP_TODO).

GO: Rigor auth-domain change (Firebase), and deploy api.rigor.design.

GO: the pack, the Rigor sprint, and the DAT patron and package checkout (payments).

Runs without you once you OK the shape

Design tokens, the header and footer, and the restyle of all reading and data pages.

Path rewrites and 301s for Guidance and mdothree.

The mdo3d.com index and the honest-count copy.

The DAT integrity fix and the package builds (staged, then your GO to sell).

WEEK	DESIGN (A)	HOSTS (B)	PRICES (C)	DAILY AI TOLL
